

Dear Cobbler,

Thank you!

Thank you for mending and repairing our shoes. However cobblers are getting disappeared day by day. But still those who are indulged in mending shoes deserves a great admiration. A great respect to those who are still doing these at an economical prices.

Thank you for keeping our shoes exquisite even after this much use for years. The one who makes us feel comfortable walking around throughout the day. The one who can create something new out of our old shoes.

Thank you for suggesting great tricks to make brand new shoes comfortable and easy to wear. From resoling to reshaping, you give our shoes a look of firm from the outside and comfy from the inside and all together helpful to the end user to cover up miles.

I would say, cobblers business is so economical that it should almost considered as a welfare organization. Thank you for devoting several hours of your day to mend our shoes.

With respect,

A thankful citizen.
