

Dear film directors,

Today I am writing this letter to thank you all for each and every time you have created movies which are capable of making people lay back and forget about their chaotic lives for a while. Let it be of any genre like action, romance, comedy etc; you bring people together and make them think alike for an instant.

Movies touch every aspect of our lives. They are not only a source of entertainment but also motivational for many.

Movies like 3 idiots, Munnabhai MBBS are entertaining as well as capable of leaving a deeply embedded message in our minds which forces us to think about them even after leaving the cinema hall.

At the same time biopic like Bhaag Milkha Bhaag is a source of great inspiration to the young generation.

As a film director, you have to play a difficult part since you have to balance the movies content with the liking of the audience as well as the budget of the film.

In a world full of rat race and cut throat competition, surviving in a film industry is an achievement on its own needless to mention the countless obstacles which are faced throughout the journey.

To make a mark of yourself in a place where many are lost in making their existence count is definitely a remarkable thing. It's like swimming in an ocean, where you have to constantly make efforts to reach to the shore, knowing the possibility that u might or might not be able to reach the land.

It is truly said that people tend to accept things what they see more easily than what they listen. Through movies we came to know about many such controversial and silent topics which we never thought about otherwise.

Films might come and go but they will definitely leave an impact on our lives for a very long time.

Thank you for making us think.

With respect,

A grateful citizen
